

WHAT IS YOUR HARVEST?

Once, when many people earned their living by working on the land, this was an important time for the community to come together to celebrate a year's work well done. Nowadays we have become increasingly remote from literal harvest, but each of us can have our own times to reflect on the completion of one year and the beginning of the next. Working in a University, I always see our graduation day as this occasion, when the students and staff come together to celebrate the students' achievements before they disappear into their various futures. Perhaps it is worth thinking about what is your harvest, and to give thanks for this at Harvest Festival.
